BEST PRACTICES IN INCIDENT INVESTIGATIONS
AUGUST 18, 2020 | NURSES AS LEADERS

Nurses are often promoted due to their clinical and organizing skills into leadership positions with little preparation for the role. You accept leadership positions to offer your gifts and talents to the organization, its staff, and those for whom they care. One of the foundations for success is building an effective team. In this workshop, we will explore what the transition from clinician to leader looks like and focus on best practices to build an extraordinary team.

Learning objectives:
• Define the similarities and differences between the roles of clinician and leader
• Identify the characteristics of an effective team
• List three tactics for developing an effective team

SEPTEMBER 9, 2020 | BEST PRACTICES IN INCIDENT INVESTIGATIONS

The clinical leader is often the person responsible for investigation of residents’ incidents and required self-reporting of potential vulnerable adult issues. Our final workshop will explore best practices in conducting investigations, documenting information, and follow-through. We will discuss how to take a look at both the micro- and macro- environments of an incident and build a holistic picture of what happened so that we can make real quality improvements.

Learning objectives:
• Define the information to look for
• Identify the information to be shared with various parties
• List three strategies for quality improvements that can result from an incident investigation
